In the Bottom. The backwaters in Sulphur Spring bottom, extending from the vicinity of the penitentiary to a point beyond the dump in East Nashville, is, says the Beaser, a sight worth seeing. Hundreds of people visit the capitol at all times during the day to witness the novel spectacle. It bears every resemblance to s mammoth lake, and needs only a few salling vessels and fish yachts to complete the picture.

The Suffering Poor. Many poor white and colored families have been thrown upon the public for food and shelter. In some localities as many as six families are crowded under one roof. The mayor makes an appeal in behalf of these destinate people, and the charitable are urred to interest themselves in securing food and shelter for them until they can re-establish themselves in their homes.
